My name is Rebecca Matuska. I have a background in being a navy wife, boy mom, college student and now esthetician student. I have lived in Kentucky, Illinois, Washington, California and now Virginia. I have traveled the entire west coast from Alaska/Canada to Mexico, entire east coast from Maine to Florida, and driven across the United States from California to Virginia. I have a goal to visit all 50 states. Jamaica has been the farthest I have traveled outside of the U.S. My educational background is an A.A.S. in Travel, Tourism and Event Management and currently studying a B.S. in Positive Psychology with a Minor in Clinical Counseling and Psychological Applied Science. I recently decided to go to esthetician school because my own self esteem boosted when I started taking care of my own skin, trying new products, new procedures and I want to carry that into boosting the self-esteem of others. Feeling beautiful in your own skin can be hard and my goal is to help others feel beyond beautiful and empowered in their own skin, too.
